Newspapers give you enough time to tell your story properly, and your prospect enough time to read it.

Most people like, and want, newspaper advertisements. Newspapers give them the information they need, and more important, the time to digest it. Through dealer tie-ins they learn where to buy. And a newspaper gives the reader an opportunity to compare.

If you have a competitor, it means your prospective customers must make a decision. "Will I buy this one, or that one?" The sale will usually go to the company with the most convincing presentation. That's one reason for the tremendous success of daily newspapers.

The United States, fearful that Antoine Gizenga might withdraw Oriental province from The Congo, sought today to have the United Nations Security Council call for an end to all secessionist activities in the turbulent country.

Ferry Godfather

IN ACCEPTING THE ASKED price of $7.2 millions for the Canadian assets of the Black Ball ferry system Mr. Bennett has made the personal decision that the price is fair. Yet there are many reasons for believing that the price is far too high—and it will be taxpayers' money that is spent.

Mr. Perrault recalls that as recently as last August these assets were listed at only $5.3 millions. He points out that only one ship of the ferry line is relatively new, having been built in 1957. The others are various vintages going back to

The company reports that it operated at a loss last year. Mr. Bennett sees a need to bolster the service with the addition of two new ferry vessels at considerable additional expense.

The public will ask why the property is not to be subjected to an independent valuation that would settle doubts as to its fairwould settle doubts as to its fair-ness. No public confidence is en-gendered, either, by the fact that Mr. Bennett's good friend, Mr. Einar Gunderson, is a member not only the B.C. Bridge and Toll Authority which is buying the ferry system, but also is a director of the Black Ball ferry company which is selling it.

These public doubts are apart from the wider question of whether the government should be plunging deeper into the ferry business. The Swartz Bay-Tsawwassen system has been a great success, and provided a needed component of our transportation service to the mainland. But the current move is not so much to fill a new requirement for service as to take over an existing one—and to run in direct competi-tion with still another existing

In the Communist half of the world, it must be remembered, the method of indirect attack is highly perfected. When

Mao Tse-tung bitterly denounces "the Yugoslav Tito and the revisionist clique," he is mainly attacking Khrushchev. Khrushchev is mainly attacking Mao, by the same token, when he furiously berates the Albanians and other "dogmatists."

In the same fashion, beyond any doubt, the sledgehammer of the 22nd Party Congress was aimed at a target as yet unidentified and a target, more-

Getting Set for B'roulette

LONDON-"B'roulette"-It's a new word ded to the language, thanks to Britain's new Betting and Gaming Roulette has never been legal here. Any Britishers who wanted to have a spin had to go over to the continent. Closest casine: Dieppe, an hour or so across the channel.

And even when the Gaming Act became law it didn't let roulette in. Reyburn The gambling places that have opened have relied mainly on the card ne chemin de fer, close relative to black-

Roulette just didn't fit into the terms of the act, which state that all money staked must be returned to the gamblers in the form of winnings. Operators of a game are not permitted to take a cut, they may not organize gambling "for private gain."

* * * Any of you who have played roulette know that holders of winning chips are paid off at fixed cdds and the operators scoop in all the losing chips. So, if roulette was to be legal here, this had to be changed.

What they've done is redraft the game on the lines of the football pools and call it

B'roulette, i.e., British roulette.

Instead of those with chips on the winning number each being paid at a rate of

For example, if there's a total of 100 pounds worth of chips wagered on all the 36 numbers and five chips are on the winning number, each receives a fifth — 20 pounds. There is nothing for the "house." The croupier merely ladles out the winnings.

Obviously, like the football pools, the more people who play, the bigger the pool, and the happier the winners are. And there it differs from roulette, where it doesn't matter to a gambler how many plays because he's on fixed odds

In B'roulette the original game has also en adapted for those who want to bet on odd-or-even, red-or-black or combinations of mbers, but it's too complicated to explain

To emphasize that it's a British version oupiers have not been imported from France as in the chemin de fer gambling places. The men at the wheels are locally trained Britishers and there's none of that "Faites vos jeux . . . rien ne va plus" stuff. It's "Place your bets" and "No more bets."

But why organize Broulette if there's nothing in it for the "house"? There are four sources of revenue. The places are run as clubs with high membership fees. A charge can be made for enter-ing each game. Food and drink are pro-vided at "club prices" (high). And gratulties from grateful winners, if not obligatory, are not uncommon.

That's a real bargain ... even common table salt costs more per pound. And of the 618 cents year by year. Yet today, on the average, Imperial gets less for the Esso paid per pound for gasoline, two cents is for federal and provincial taxes that provide you with such things as social services and new highways.

To bring you this bargain, since 1951 alone Imperial has invested more than $80,000,000 in B.C. That's more than $90,000 per employee... and this doesn't include wages and other operating expenses which have increased gasoline it sells in B.C. than ten years ago...and Esso gasoline today is much more powerful than ten years ago.

Shell scientists test Super Shell's special Winter Blend in a new all-weather laboratory. Temperature and humidity can be varied to duplicate weather conditions from Halifax to B.C.

B.C. WINTER BLEND

Shell scientists adjust three of Super Shell's nine ingredients to create a special winter formula for top performance in damp West Coast weather

Shell stations are now pumping a blend of Super Shell's nine ingredients especially formulated to give you faster starts and quicker warm-ups on cold mornings. The dosage of two ingredients (butane and mixed pentanes) has increased. A third ingredient is added to cut stalling caused by carburetor frosting*. Read how Super Shell's B.C. Winter Blend helps make cold weather driving more pleasant.

GASOLINE that gives you top per-A formance in summer can make your car difficult to start and balky to drive when the temperature drops.

Tests in Shell's new winter laboratory prove it-at temperatures from forty above to forty below zero-and in man made sleet, fog, snow. That is why, this October, Shell scientists have altered the formula of Super Shell to create a special mix for low temperatures and high humidity-a B.C. Winter Blend.

Here is how three of the nine ingredients in Super Shell have been adjusted to create a Winter Blend for West Coast weather conditions:

1. Carburetor defroster added to prevent stalling on chill, damp days

It's a surprising fact that your carburetor can frost up even when the temperature is a mild 45°. Carburetor frosting happens most often on chilly, wettish days when there's a lot of moisture in the air.

Here's why: Your carburetor gulps great breaths of air to mix with gasoline actually 14 parts of air to one part

As gasoline vaporizes a curious thing happens. It pulls heat out of the air. The inside of your carburetor is soon as cold *Carburetor frosting (sometimes called "carburetor icing," or simply "cold stalling"), should not be confused with gas line freezing, Carburetor frosting occurs in chilly, da weather. It does not occur in cold, dry weather. When the mercury dips to 10° or below, carburetor frosting is no longer a problem, but gas line freezing can occur. Water condensing in your car's fuel tank freezes in the gas line. This stops the flow of gasoline and you are stalled. The best insurance against gas line freezing is a can of gas line anti-freeze added at your Shell service station. Never let your tank get below half full-the less air, the less moisture there is to condense.

as your refrigerator. The moisture in the air freezes and clings to the metal carburetor walls like the frost that forms in your refrigerator.

Under normal running conditions you won't be aware of the frost, but when you close the throttle, e.g. at a red light, it can choke off the air supply and your engine stalls. The anti-froster in Super Shell fights this maddening phenomenon by coating carburetor walls so that ice can't stick to them. This drastically reduces your chances of an icing stall whenever the temperature drops to 45° or lower.

2. Butane content increased to give you quick starts

If you have trouble starting your car in cold weather it may be that your gasoline is not vaporizing as promptly as it should. Until it starts to vaporize and mix with the air in your carburetor, gasoline has a hard time "firing" your Shell scientists fight this problem with an extra dose of butane. Butane is highly volatile-which means that it changes easily from a liquid to a vapor. The change is the same sort of thing that happens when water boils and turns into steam. Butane actually boils and vaporizes at 31.1°F.—lower than the temperature inside your refrigerator. It is so eager to get going Shell has to store it under pressure until it is tamed by mixing with other ingredients.

This remarkable ingredient increases the volatility of Super Shell dramatiTakes a strain off your battery-and also off your patience.

3. A bigger dose of mixed pentanes for fast warm-ups on cold days

Starting is just part of the story. Cold engines struggle and sputter annoyingly until they warm up. This wastes gasoline,

That is why Shell scientists increase the dose of mixed pentanes in Super Shell's B.C. Winter Blend-to speed up the delivery of heat to your engine. Shell makes mixed pentanes by subjecting petroleum to terrific heat, transforming heavier hydrocarbons into lighter, quick-burning molecules. Blended into Super Shell, these quickburning molecules work much like kindling in a log fire. They ignite easily and everything gets going quickly. Your engine warms up faster, gets over that hesitant, balky feeling in a hurry.

Fill up with special B.C. Winter Blend

Make sure you're ready for winter driving with a tankful of Super Shell's B.C. Winter Blend.

Its nine-ingredient formula is adjusted to help make the difference between balky, sputtering performance and a fast, smooth getaway. Don't forget all the other ingredients in today's Super Shell (See box). They're working every day you drive, every season of the year, to give you top performance.

The 9 ingredients in do to give your car top performance

- #1 is TCP† for power, mileage, and longer plug life.
- #2 is mixed pentanes for fast warm-ups.
- #3 is anti-knock mix to resist all kinds of knock.
- #4 is gum preventive to keep carburetors clean inside
- #5 is butane for quick starts on cold mornings.
- #6 is "cat-cracked" gasoline—for extra power. #7 is a carburetor defroster (added
- in cold weather.) #8 is heavy alkanes to help control
- "high-speed knock." #9 is Platformate for extra mileage,

I've never been in the stadium yet that the wind wasn't howling down off the north hill, but it was at its best (or worst) Saturday and the result was a rather drab game.

Don't get me wrong. It would be unfair to criticize the players on either club. They gave their best but the cold gusting wind set the pattern and the rival quarterbacks had to go along with it.

In short, it meant neither team could throw against the breeze and Ken Ploen, in particular, was hesitant to even try his luck with it at his back. He stawed on the ground set.

Rosy Future for Salmon Fishery

CAMPBELL RIVER-One of Canada's leading authorities on fisheries conservation and management is highly optimistic about the future of the Pacific Coast salmon

"I do not look on salmon runs as a declining resource," Roderick Haig-Brown, Campbell River magistrate and author, told the Rotary Club here.

"Projections made at the recent Canadian Natural Resources Conference indicate that by the 1980s we will be taking two to three times as many pinks, two times as many sockeye, and two times as many dog salmon."

He cautioned, however, that by the same time, catches of the two sports species, springs and cohoes, will only have increased slightly over the present harvest total.

"This is because they are the two hardest fish to do anything with, spending at least part of their life in fresh water," he said.

Mr. Haig-Brown told Rotarians the three distinct aspects of salmon conservation are positive salmon development, salmon protection, and fish distribution.

Salmon development, which he called "the most productive area of the three," involves improvement and control of rivers and spawning grounds and the development of artificial spawning facilities.

Protection includes control of predators, pollution, logging, and hazards caused by dam construction. Fish

The success of this bold undertaking would present Canada with its third and only hopeful choice. As the United States began to reduce its tariffs, in return for reciprocal concessions from its foreign customers, Canada could do the same thing.

That would compel far-reaching adjustments in various Canadian industries, like the adjustments in various Canadian industries, like the adjustments that Britain is ready to face when it joins the Commonwealth.

While these utterances add up to total confusion, it is clear that the government has started to think furiously and may have seen by now the only alternatives before it.

The first alternative is to continue the policy of furtively restricting imports by tariffs, taxation devices and currency devaluation, to isolate Canada cannot possibly maintain its present position.

If the United States does not advance toward freer trade it will certainly retreat into higher tariffs, with immediate effects on Canada and disastrous consequences to the free world's economy, its unity and its military strength. If Britain cannot enter the European economy it will seek freer entry into Commonwealth markets, including Canada, though they could be no adequate substitute for the Common Market. Then Canada

Monte Roberts, that renowned backer of losing crusades (Save Ripple Rock, Replace Ripple Rock, to name but two) has attracted a wide audience among hardy readers who wonder what in the world will appear next in the space allotted to him.

This is only fair, as Mr. Roberts wonders, too.

His columns are intended to be humorous, but often the bursting of stuffed shirts can be heard above the chuckles, Monte is probably the most aggressively hometown Victoria man on the staff. He was born in Victoria on Victoria day, and is named after his maternal grandparents, the Monteith family of old-time Victoria West days.

It was not his fault his family moved to Vancouver, where he started his working news career on the Province, but it was his fault he moved East, to Winnipeg and Toronto.

Possibly it is to atone for this error in judgment that Monte, on every possible occasion, belligerently refers to this, the fairest city of them all.

When not attempting to be funny, Mr. Roberts is occupied with the duties of armed services and marine reporter, with occasional stints on the city desk to keep him from getting out of hand.

16-Year-Old Son Sends Out Alarm Friedrich Waldhaus, 52,

was killed Sunday after-noon while hunting on Grassy Mountain, 15 miles south of Port Alberni in the Franklin River area.

He was accompanied by his 16-year-old son. The dead man, who lived at 808 5th Avenue North in Port Alberni, was a truck driver at MacMillan, Bloedel and Powell River Ltd., pulp mill in neigh-boring Alberni.

THROUGH HEAD

He and his son had gone hunting alone, and it was the youth who sent word to Port Alberni RCMP of the shooting. When police arrivde on the scene they found the man had been shot through the top of the head. In their opinion death was instantaneous.

The investigation continued today, and arrangements are being made for an inquest. Survivors include the widow, Tilly, at home.

Collapsible Stools For Limited Space By PENNY SAVER

Saw something today that would be perfect for apartme dwellers. I'd just love to get a couple for Christmas and I think most anyone would be delighted with one as a gift. What is this smashing gift suggestion? Well, it's saddle stools. And just what are saddle stools? Well, they are stools that look something like saddles. Don't suppose that really answers anything, so I'll try to enlarge.

"They have leather seats shaped very much like saddles, the leather is in a choice of two shades, natural or oxblood, and is ornately tooled with Aztec figures and centred with an Aztec calendar. Seat can be removed and the three Bamboo, hinged legs are collapsible, Attached to one of the legs is a leather strap with which to tie the legs together when seats are dismantled. Sound wonderful? They are, and only $4.95 each.

I in agine by now you have a good start on your Christmas cards. Could be the you're still looking for something extra special for your closest friends. Go and see the cards I was looking at today. Tropical scenes painted in watercolors feature gorgeous birds made of multi-colored feathers. They have greetings in Spanish or English or can be purchased plain for only 30 cents each.

Do you prefer cards featuring altar boys and angels to feathers? Then see ones at 20 cents each that are in true Mexican motif. These too can be purchased with Spanish or English greetings or no greeting at all.

Do fallen leaves really help the ground?

As summer comes to an end, used by the tree are lost from the leaves of the oak and the elm, the beech and birch trees adorn themselves in candy colors and fall off their branches. The forest floor is spread with a crisp, multicolored carpet. The lawn and the sidewalks are littered with papery leaves. Mother Nature seems to be a very sloppy housekeeper. But this is far from true. Those fallen leaves have a place in the scheme of things and year by year they play a part in building up the soil for new generations of plants.

and led a spade. East won with the nine and returned the suit. South ruffed the third lead and noted that West had shown up with the ace.

The moment of decision had arrived. South led the eight of hearts. West put on the four and South was either going to make the hand for a top score or lose it by going down one.

West got out with his last diamond. South ruffed

From the bidding either opponent might hold the ace of hearts. South thought a while and finally decided that West just would not have doubled three clubs with only one are and three queens. Once the decision was made South went up with dummy's king and made the hand.

Mr. Cooper, who is Canadian manager of the Jamaica Tourist Board, announced the island will be within nine hours' flying time of Vancouver after Dec. 15.

On that date Trans-Canada Air Lines will initiate a daily four-hour jet flight from To-ronto to Jamaica, (Flying time from Vancouver to Toronto in five hours.)

SLOWER TEMPO

"We hope it will be break-fast in Victoria and dinner in Jamaica for any of you good people who care to visit us."

Mr. Cooper said Victoria is much like Jamaica in that it has a relaxed, slower tempo than most North American Canadian travellers do not need passports, visas or pho-tographs, they don't have to be vaccinated, they can use their own driver's licences for their own driver's genies for rental of U-drive cars and they don't have to pay a tour-ist or "head tax" for coming in or leaving the country.

back here Sunday from Prince Albert, Sask. Penitentiary in connection with an investigation into a gangland style killing here.

Police declined to identify the men brought back by two detectives who went to Prince Albert to question four men who escaped prison with Roderick Chief, 25, whose shot gun-riddled body was found in a shallow grave last week in suburban Burnaby.

The prisoners were Donald Everitt, 21: William Archer, 41: Douglas Bevans, 23; Ronald Neersfaard, 25.

Chief and the other four escaped from Alberta's Spy Hill jail, Oc? 7. The four questioned were recaptured here and eventually sent to Prince Albert.

Police believe the killing took place during a drinking party in a house about a mile away from where Chief's body was found.

Mrs. Underwood said Everitt joined the others in the escape so that he could see his wife and two-year-old daughter in Vancouver.

"But he couldn't get away from the others," she said. "Chief was the ringleader and he wanted them to stick to gether—he had some crazy, idea that they should all make their way to Cuba and join up with Castro."

This tremendous expansion in the money supply has been needed to finance the government's anticipated $980,000,000 deficit, and to pay for its dealings in the exchange market where it is attempting to hold down the price of the Canadian dollar.

According to Bank of Canada figures, the money supply rose $339,000,000 in the 12 months ended Nov. 9, 1960—one of the largest increases in

In October alone, it cost $187,000,000 to maintain the position of the Canadian dollar in terms of U.S.

According to one informant, another $25,000,000 was needed in the first two weeks of November, as pressure on the dollar continues,

One of the reasons for this pressure is the still high interest rates prevailing in Canada in relation to those prevailing in the U.S.

Interest rates are coming down, but, apparently, not enough to solve the government's financial dilemma. A recent drop in the government's NHA rate of one-quarter of one per cent was designed to lead the down, with the Abbotsford area and is expected to apply the Abbotsford area area is considered significant area is considered as industry ranging from the about to get underway.

It is understood that Rich California-headquare in this California-headquare in the Califo of Canada governor James Coyne was his alleged refusal to increase the money supply sufficient to meet the demands of Finance Minister Fleming.

The alternative to increasing the money supply, which in variably leads to inflation, and the devaluation of insurance policies and pension funds, and a lowering of spending power for those on fixed incomes, is an increase in taxation.

Rosy Future for Salmon Fishery

CAMPBELL RIVER-One of Canada's leading authorities on fisheries conservation and management is highly optimistic about the future of the Pacific Coast salmon

"I do not look on salmon runs as a declining resource," Roderick Haig-Brown, Campbell River magistrate and author, told the Rotary Club here.

"Projections made at the recent Canadian Natural Resources Conference indicate that by the 1980s we will be taking two to three times as many pinks, two times as many sockeye, and two times as many dog salmon."

He cautioned, however, that by the same time, catches of the two sports species, springs and cohoes, will only have increased slightly over the present harvest total.

"This is because they are the two hardest fish to do anything with, spending at least part of their life in fresh water." he said.

Mr. Haig-Brown told Rotarians the three distinct aspects of salmon conservation are positive salmon development, salmon protection, and fish distribution.

Salmon development, which he called "the most productive area of the three," involves improvement and control of rivers and spawning grounds and the development of artificial spawning facilities,

Protection includes control of predators, pollution, logging, and hazards caused by dam construction. Fish ceeding on the Big Qualicum River.

First stage of this project, involving construction of a dam at the outlet of Horne Lake and a diversion tunnel, will cost $1.2 million. It will enable the federal fisheries to control the flow, depth, and temperature of the river.

"This," he said, "will provide ideal spawning and rearing conditions for the springs, coho and cutthroat."

Stage two of the project will be the improvement of the river's natural spawning beds and addition of artificial beds.

Passengers Slaughtered

MIAMI, Fla. (AP) - A terror-filled story indicating that Capt. Julian Harvey slaughtered the passengers of the ketch Bluebelle has been told to the United States Coast Guard by the lone survivor, Terry Jo Duperrault.

Well before the Bluebelle went down in Bahamas waters Nov. 11 with the loss of five lives, 11-year-old Terry Jo said she saw the bodies of her mother and brother on the floor of the main cabin and saw "blood all over" the cabin and the main deck.

Harvey, who killed himself after learning that Terry Jo had survived, took the ship's dinghy and main life raft and jumped overboard, leaving her stranded on the deck, she said.

Terry Jo's dramatic story of terror in the night was dis-closed by the coast guard at a press conference today.

TOKYO (UPI) - The United States air force reported that a B-57 fighter bomber accidentally fired 16 rounds of 20 millimeter ammunition today into Nakaminato city, about 60 miles north of

The air force said four buildings were hit but there were no reports of casualties among the city's estimated 40,000 residents.

The plane, a two-engined craft, was banking into a bombing run over a nearby practice range when its pilot brushed against a push-button mechanism which triggered the plane's four cannons.

The air force said the triggering mechanism was on "double safety" but a "malfunctioning" caused the plane's guns to fire.
